Improving knowledge exchange at the interface of science, policy and practice: lessons from environmental science

Please join the Research-Policy Translation Community of Practice on the 26th of May for an astute exploration into the world of knowledge exchange, boundary spanning, and building and managing trusted relationships.

Including a keynote presentation by Dr Chris Cvitanovic and a panel discussion with leading professionals working at the interface of research and government, tying together evidence and public policy, this session aims to simplify and normalise knowledge exchange, research translation, and boundary spanning concepts.

If you are interested in improving your knowledge and understanding of these critical concepts, register now! This session is open to all that wish to join.
